Worthy of Edmonton

Edmonton is going to put on a gala day for the 400 Torontonians who arrive here on Thursday, it should be a gala day that everyone will remember.

The 400 visitors are passengers on the "Toronto-no-to-claigary-Edmonton Goodwill Train" and before reaching Edmonton they will have tasted the hiliarious delights of the Calgary Stampede and the undoubted heartiness of Calgary hospitality.

Thus, while being aware that compared the calgary is the standard of the compared the control of the control o

What Will Happen to Rent Control?

The prices board, from which organiza-tion springs rent control, among other things, will come to a natural end on March 31, 1950, and millions of Canadians are wondering what will then stand be-tween their pocketbooks and excessive rents.

ere wondering what will then stand be-tween their pocketbooks and excessive rents.

They might well wonder. For rent con-trol has become one of the vital factors in Canadian domestic life in Canadian domestic life.

It would be quite unjust as well as untrue to picture all landlords as a reput-rent waiting to include an intolerably high rent scale the moment the ban is lifted.

But with the cost-of-living index at a cord peak in Canada and with prices still aring in heart-breaking abandon, it build be futle to hope that most landlords ill fail to take advantage of the highest nts they can get.

All this sounds very interesting and attractive.

But one may hope that the welcome may include, somewhere, enough brass belowed to be a solid and excitement to depict the real centre and metropolis.

Not so many months ago, a noted American newspaper described Edmonton as the dullest boom town in history. In many respects that is so.

Street cars and buses stop running at one a.m.

One end of the city's main street is perpetually in a ferment of reconstruction. Mixed drinking is not permitted in beer parlors.

Mixed drinking is not permitted in beer parlors.

These points and others help to substantiate the fact of dullness.

For that reason, any celebration designed to impress and please visitors must have an added gusto.

But the allover fact remains that present rents, in a general way of speaking, are quite as high as the average household budget will bear meetic establishment remains in balance so long as rent does not consume more than 25 per cent of the total income.

In the majority of cases, the sum spent on rent probably exceeds that percentage already.

If the lid's taken off and the landlord is enabled to follow his very human inclination to get what he can, Canadian household budgets could easily be upset in a dangerous way, possibly to the point of denying children some of the other necessities of life and health.

But admitting and even affirming that principle, it is difficult to see how rent control can be completely abandoned until the Canadian economy reverts to something more approaching normality.

Broadcasting City Council Meetings

According to newspaper reports, the most popular radio program in Hamilton. Ontario, is that which broadcasts the meetings of the Hamilton city council.

The council voted to allow its proceedings to be broadcast more than a year ago. Since then it has tried to withdraw from the agreement.

From the agreement, of public opinion is so great that the aldermen, so the reports say, dare not abandon the practice.

Hamilton people simply love to hear the blow-by-blow accounts of how their civic administration spends the $10,000,000 of public funds in its control each year.

Now the actual broadcast of a city council meetings would be a wholesome thing if citizens would make a habit of supply background and context and would and the supply background and context and would supply background and context and would supply background and context and would and the supply background and context and would supply background and
